5

10

15

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A command control device is provided for enabling a user to specify or select an address through intuition and with one touch, instead of an address displayed in text form such as a complicated command string or bookmark, which cannot be selected An information processing section includes an intuitively. image capture section, a central processing section, and a command control section. The information processing section carries out a process according to a program stored in a program storage. information processing section carries out the process first by receiving a user's instruction provided through an input section. Then, the information processing section makes an output section display corresponding to control command present image information stored in a command control information storage. Then, the information processing section executes a command that corresponds to the image display.